

CORPORATE COMMUNICATION, BRAND & MEDIA MANAGEMENT

Overview

This programme introduces participants to current global trends in corporate communication, social media and personal and organisational branding and positioning. The programme is designed to equip the participant with the skills to more effectively communicate as a leader, and as an organisational spokesperson. The programme provides the frameworks and tools needed to develop and implement corporate communication plans for both internal and external stakeholders, as well as to manage relationships between the organisation and the public media. Particular focus is given to media communication in situations of competitive challenge and crisis management.

Duration

Three days

Outline

The following topics are covered on the Corporate Communication, Brand & Media Management Programme:

1. Overview of latest trends in social media, positioning and branding
2. Effective communication with individuals and groups
3. Perception management
4. Audience analysis and message design
5. Communication strategy development and implementations
6. Media selection and management
7. Corporate brand development and management
8. Personal brand development and management
9. Dealing with difficult interviews and conversations
10. Understanding the dynamics of the public media
11. Using communication for effective leadership

Approach

The programme introduces critical issues relating to corporate communication, brand and media management, addressing each of the topics detailed in the outline, above.
